Sells Necklaces to Aid Ugandan Widows

Frederick, Md....Jackie Lamonthé, owner of Neccessories in the Westview Promenade Shopping Center, recently became an Akola Ambassador, and is selling necklaces made by Ugandan widows through the Ugandan American Partnership Organization (UAPO).

"Neccessories doesn't take any profit from the sale of the necklaces – the revenues help the widows learn a trade and earn wages to support their families and needy children in Uganda," Ms. Lamonthé explained.

"Neccessories features unique, useful and affordable luxury items aimed at women, so it's fitting that we offer these necklaces made by women, and in doing so help them improve their lives," said Ms. Lamonthé. Currently, UAPO has five projects that meet the physical, emotional and spiritual needs to communities throughout Uganda.

Neccessories offers a wide selection of fashionable products, including: handbags for day and evening wear; scarves; hair accessories; local and imported bath and body products; and other jewelry, such as earrings, bracelets and watches. Decorative linens, throws, pillows, mirrors, serving pieces and other unusual but functional home décor items are also available. In addition, upscale office and organizational supplies, portfolios, attaché cases and Caspari holiday and event-related cards can be purchased at value-added prices.

UAPO is a 501(c)(3) non-profit founded to care for impoverished Ugandans by partnering with indigenous ministries and communities to transform Uganda through sustainable development.
